

Voluntary Army in sight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Armed Services Committee breathed new life into the volunteer Army concept Monday by approving a $2.7 billion military pay increase three times more expensive than President Nixon's request.

The committee added the pay boost to a bill extending the draft for two years and giving Nixon the authority to end undergraduate deferments.

The pay increase brought raves from House members hoping to end the draft with an all-volunteer Army, but it may be opposed by the Nixon administration which had planned to spend funds to raise the pay of enlisted men 50 per cent starting July 1.

"For the first time in the modern era a congressional committee has recognized the direct connection between conscription and inadequate military compensation," said Reps. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, and William S. Steiger, R-Wis., strong backers of an all-volunteer armed force.

The committee on a 26 to 14 vote agreed to combine into one year the pay and volunteer allowance increases that Nixon planned to stretch over two years until mid-1973 when the administration hopes to achieve a zero draft call. It sent the bill to the floor on a 36 to 4 margin.

The bill considerably reforms the Selective Service Act including:

- Abolishment of divinity student exemptions. There are an estimated 17,000 men entering seminary each year.
- Extend the term of nonmilitary duty of conscientious objectors from two years to three. The extra year is in lieu of reserve duty required of soldiers after active duty.

- Give Nixon authority to end undergraduate deferments in accordance with his announcement that students with a deferment issued after April 23, 1970 would be eligible for the draft.

- Reduce the age of a person eligible to serve on a draft board from 21 to 18 and limit term of service to 15 years instead of 25 with the maximum age of a board member 65.

U.S. war planes attack North Vietnamese tanks

AIGON (UPI) — Scores of U.S. airplanes attacked North Vietnamese troops chasing South Vietnamese troops out of Laos yesterday. Field reports said the communist tanks shot down a U.S. Air Force jet fighter-bomber and that American pilots destroyed nine tanks and damaged a tenth.

The size of South Vietnam's task force still in Laos—24,000 men at the height of the campaign to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail—was down to between 8,000 and 10,000 troops. Military sources said the offensive was in "the withdrawal phase" and U.S. helicopter crews described some South Vietnamese units being flown out as "disorganized."

The main body of South Vietnamese was retreating out of Laos on Highway 9, the route which had served as the axis for the Saigon offensive which began Feb. 8.

Military sources said the American mission at this point was to keep Highway 9 open "so that South Vietnamese troops can get out." The heaviest action reported Monday occurred along the highway as North Vietnamese units pressed a counter offensive. Field reports said a North Vietnamese column of 21 tanks speeding east on Highway 9 toward the South Vietnamese border threw up a curtain of antiaircraft fire which hit a U.S. Air Force F100 jet fighter-bomber.

Gregory Fleming of Columbus, Ohio, the pilot of an A1H Cobra helicopter gunship, said the F100 "blew up in the air" in an explosion that apparently killed the American at the controls.

Fleming said attacks by the F100 and other aircraft destroyed nine of the tanks and damaged a 10th.

The communist's tanks were pursuing a South Vietnamese column of nearly 100 tanks and armored personnel carriers which was reportedly stalled on Highway 9. It was bringing up the rear of the main South Vietnamese task force.

Fleming said that about 75 minutes after the initial U.S. air attack at 3 p.m., the Communist armor had slowed to about 25 mph and was about five miles behind the South Vietnamese column which was situated inside Laos about two miles from the frontier.

An advance by the Communist tanks on the same course would bring them within range of U.S. artillery and tanks massed along the border.

BYU 'World Neighbors' on display this week

The Aborigines of Australia, the silver beer horn of Norway, a genuine lobster trap from Canada, hand carved ivory jewelry from India, and a war shield dating back to the 1300's from the Philippines, are only a few of the things featured in the International Week displays in the Wilkinson Center this week.

The theme of the annual week is "World Neighbors." Displays from India, East Germany, Mexico, Australia, Philippines, Norway, Vietnam, Italy, France, Nigeria, Iran, Peru, Holland, China, and Israel will continue all day through Friday.

A special feature today is a French Cafe Terrace in the Reception Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. staffed by the French Club.

The British and European groups will perform from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Reception Center today.

Dr. Virginia Cutler, distinguished professor of family economics and home management, will speak at noon in 321 ELWC on Wednesday.

The noon hour entertainment on Wednesday will be offered by the Oriental and Australian groups.

Themes presented at history meet

By NEDRA WEST

Four historical papers on Mormon themes were presented today by the Mormon History Association at a meeting held in conjunction with the Mormon Festival of Arts.

Paul F. Edwards of Graceland College gave the first presentation, was entitled "David Smith, Artist and Poet." He dealt with the son of the prophet and his involvement with the Reorganized Church. The conclusion of his paper was that David Smith was torn by internal confrontations environment and expectations of his brothers.

Graceland College, in Iowa, is sponsored by Reorganized Church.

"The Paintings of C.C.A. Christensen" were discussed by William E. Berrett of BYU. He showed slides of C.C.A. Christensen's works, which span early history of the church to the settlement in Utah. He stressed a belief that the church "forever indebted to C.C.A. Christensen for his paintings that much to teach the history of the Church." The Christensen paintings are currently on display at the HFAC.

Sidney Rigdon was considered apostate by three different church groups and denounced by Mark McKiernan, Idaho State University. McKiernan read his paper "Sidney Rigdon and the Historians." He noted that Rigdon has not been dealt with kindly by historians. The historians for the ciples of Christ liken him to a conspirator, and the anti-Mormons to him with a conspiracy with Rigdon to disprove the Book of Mormon and the founder of Mormonism, said McKiernan.

The final presentation was a minute slide presentation of Coalville Tabernacle. The es were by James B. Allen, of U.

Eugene E. Campbell, professor of history at BYU and chairman of the History Association, explained how the Association formed.

War film featured

Academy Award winning film "John Wayne will host a number of personalities and stars a special film to be shown today, tomorrow and Thursday in the Varsity Theater.

The film, "No Substitute for Victory," features Martha Raye, Frank Sinatra, Taft Benson, Lowell Thomas, General Albert C. Jemeyer, General Paul Harkins, General Mark Clark, Admiral U.S. Grant Sharp, Sergeant Barry, and the ballad singing green of, and others.

The film will be shown tomorrow. Today it will be shown at 10 a.m. in the Varsity Theater and 10:30 a.m. in 321 ELWC. Wednesday film will be shown at 8 and 10 p.m. in the Varsity Theater, and Thursday showings will be at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. in 321 ELWC. Sponsored by the Young Men's Union for Freedom and the U.S. Academics office, the film is a hard-hitting critique of U.S. foreign policy in the Vietnam war. It features first-hand accounts of war which reportedly have not been presented to the American public before with such candor and clarity.

Tracing a brief history of the Association, Campbell explained that it was organized in 1966 in San Francisco to promote Mormon History on a national basis. He mentioned that members from BYU, Utah State, and the University of Utah meet regularly. They also meet at national history conventions.

"The association is not limited to history teachers nor Mormons," stressed Campbell. "We welcome anyone interested in Mormon history to join. There are a number of members of the reorganized church involved." He adds that Bob Flanders of the reorganized church had stated, "After all, I'm a fifth generation Latter-day Saint."

Cafe Terrasse brings Paris to Provo

A bit of sophistication of Paris will appear in the ELWC West Patio today from 11 to 4 as Les Copains, the French Club, brings a Cafe Terrasse to BYU.

On the Patio it will be the 14th of July, France's Independence Day, and so the cafe will be crowded with French tradition and hospitality. Decorations and costumes will be in the red, white, and blue of the Tricolore; there will be a sidewalk artist (as there always is in Paris in the summer); and a gendarme will oversee the festivities and prevent them from getting out of hand.

While patrons dine on Salade Nicoise et Salade de Carottes,

Quiche Lorraine, Chou a la Creme, and Jus de Ratou (all for only 5 francs 50, or $1), they will enjoy the singing of Howard Stosich.

Recordings by Mireille Mathieu, Serge Lama, Nana Mouskouri, and Joe Dassin will also provide background entertainment.

'Elijah' set for Thurs.

By KEITH NORMAN
Universe Staff Writer

One of the musical monuments of the 19th century, Mendelssohn's "Elijah," will be presented Thursday, March 25, as part of the Third Annual Mormon Festival of Arts at BYU.

Performing the dramatic oratorio based on the life of the Old Testament prophet will be the 143-member BYU Oratorio Choir and the BYU Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Dr. John R. Hallday. Tickets are available at the HFAC Ticket Office, for the 8:15 p.m. performance in the de Jong Concert Hall.

Felix Mendelssohn composed "Elijah" for the Birmingham Festival in 1846, and personally conducted the premiere. The magnificent choral lyricism combined with the inherent drama of the King James text, brought an overwhelming audience response and lasting popularity to the work.

Beginning with Elijah's decree of a three-year drought, the oratorio traces his confrontation with the priests of Baal, the conflict with King Ahab and his notorious wife Jezebel, and his exile in the wilderness and translation into heaven.

Mendelssohn gives a musical portrayal of the great Hebrew prophet as "a man strong and zealous, full of bitterness and scorn, the antagonist of the rabble, yet born aloft on the wings of angels."

The BYU Oratorio Choir specializes in large concert works, receiving widespread attention last fall for the world premiere of Václav Nežtyl's "Dies Ultima," also performed with the nationally recognized BYU Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Ralph G. Laycock. For the March 25 "Elijah" concert, eight student soloists will be featured.

Scott Card admits he likes his play

By ELLEN ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

Nineteen-year-old playwright Orson Scott Card unabashedly admits he likes his own play. Referring to "The Apostate," a religious drama depicting the rebellion and subsequent conversion of Alma the Younger and the four sons of Mosiah, Card calls the work a "tight, artistic piece, but not the epitome of good art."

"I've never before seen a play that had no bad actors," he remarked, highly lauding the performances of the play's cast. While admitting some mistakes which have been made during performances, Card praised "good characterizations, good acting—good everything."

"The Apostate" is the first of a trilogy which includes the as yet unperformed "The Sons of Mosiah," the story of the converted sons' missions to the Lamanites and the half-completed "Amulek." In "Amulek," Card says he is experimenting with the Greek chorus form. This work will be completely scored by his cousin Mark Park, a concert pianist.

True to his playwrighting professor's predictions, Card's first three plays followed the novice patterns of "anti-heroes, horrible mad scenes or some kind of perversions." Chuckling, he calls his second and soon to be produced play, "In Flight" a "perversion play."

Taken basically from Fourth Nephi, this drama is a "make up" story of people caught up in a political situation—not particularly religious, the author adds.

A versatile and prolific author, Card has dropped out of BYU after absorption in his writing sent his McKay Scholarship level 3.6-plus average diving to new lows. He now anticipates being called on a mission this summer along with his friend Robert Stoddard who is scoring "Isaiah." Card's biggest dramatic effort which depicts the life of Jesus.

Born in Washington, Card says he has been happiest in Utah

Valley. "Nowhere else does a Mormon artist have quite the same freedom to dedicate his work publicly and without censure to our Master, Jesus Christ."

Fire Drills

Could the University publish directions on what to do in each building in case of fire, or maybe run practice fire drills? We might not even recognize a fire alarm if we heard it.

In case of fire in any building, occupants will hear a loud, continuous alarm that would be hard to ignore. The building will be cleared under direction of the custodian.

Tuition Rebate?

Since we present our activity card for attendance at games, concerts, plays, and other affairs, the price of tuition must include admission to these events. It seems to me that we are forced to pay for these activities whether we attend them or not. I suggest that activity cards not include admission to these events; those who attend can pay for them.

Activity cards are presented at campus events in order to give students first chance at attending, and not necessarily because tuition funds are being used to support them. Athletic events are supported by donations, tickets sold to non-students, and television contracts.

Leading poet discusses works

Dr. Edward G. Lueders, cited by a U.S. Information Agency publication as one of 12 leading contemporary poets in the United States, will read some of his poetry and discuss poetry Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in A-456 M.A.R.B. The English Circle sponsored event is free and all the student body is invited.

"Your Poem, Man . . ." a 24-line, free verse style work of Dr. Lueders, was chosen from among 11 other poet works as "contemporary poetry that would reflect trends in content, form and style characteristic of the poet's art today," said the USIA publication.

Dr. Lueders, chairman of the Department of English at the University of Utah, originally published the poem in a co-edited book, an anthology of modern verse called "Some Haystacks Don't Have Any Needle."

Cat trackmen pull upsets

By LYNN CANNON

Swedish javelin thrower Raimo Pihl and freshman distance runner Bob Tuttle pulled major upset victories in pacing BYU's track activities over the weekend.

At Tempe, Pihl tossed the spear 251-4 to defeat ASU's American record holder Mark Murro. Murro, who has thrown 300-0, was second with a 249-9 throw.

Running indoors in another meet at Pocatello, Tuttle out-ran a good field in the two-mile run. The Garden Grove, Calif. freshman covered the last quarter mile in 61 seconds to overhaul Idaho State's Nelson Karagu and record his best time ever—9:26.5.

Other Cougar winners at Tempe were high jumper Dan Mendenhall (6-8) and sprinter-hurdler Mark Low who won the 440 intermediate hurdles with a personal best of 52.0 seconds.

The Cougar mile relay team of Ben Partington, Paul Hackett, Ralph Mann and Saimoni Tamani also were victorious. Tamani had to come from fifteen yards behind on the final carry to secure the win for the Cougars.

Two other Cougars recorded personal best performances at Tempe. Sophomore Eric Wadsworth continued his improvement with a 1:50.8 fourth place finish in the 880, and Steve Bergeson got his best in the mile—4:09.4.

Other notable performances were turned in by Mike Louisiana, third in the discus, David Hindley and Richard Reid who finished 2-3 in the two-mile with respective times of 8:51.2 and 8:56.0 and Allan Judd who ran 1:50.6 in finishing third in the 880.

Saturday the Cougars will be at home for the BYU Invitational.

Cats invade Riverside

BYU's potent All-Western Athletic Conference foursome—outfielder Dunc Iorg (.340), outfielder Terry Sanford (.310), third baseman Mike Foster (.343) and righthanded pitching ace Jeff Dusek (6-1), are presently competing in the fifth annual Riverside National Intercollegiate Baseball Tournament.

Approximately 200 players from eight schools which include BYU, Kansas State, Oregon State, Oklahoma, Stanford, Arizona State, Air Force and the University of California of Riverside, will compete.

The tournament is in its fifth year and is under the tri-sponsorship of the Riverside Press-Enterprise. The tournament got underway yesterday and will continue through Saturday.

This year's tournament will consist of a 29 game round-robin event with the teams broken up into two different divisions.

Of this new division setup Don Edwards, tournament director stated, "It will give the fans a chance to see the most important game on the final night's play. This should create more interest than ever before."

The Blue Division will consist of Kansas State, Arizona State, Air Force and host UCR, Oregon

State, Oklahoma, BYU and Stanford will compete in the Gold Division.

With most of BYU's hitting attack returning, the pre-tournament outlook seems brighter than ever. Pitching coach Vernon Law expects the mound staff to be one of the strong points of the season.

These are the ingredients for Glen Tuckett's fourth appearance in the Riverside National. The Cougars have finished second twice, but took sixth in their 1968 visit.

Tuckett also expects help from junior catcher Rod Cloward (.407), senior lefthander Steve Easton (8-1 2.87 ERA) and junior shortstop Mike Staffieri. Easton and Iorg have both been drafted by the major leagues, remained with the baseball.

The Cougars captured Northern Division title in WAC last year with a conference mark and 31-14 record. But BYU lost the playoff to the University of Arizona for the berth in College World Series.

"It'll be hard to re-outstanding players like R. Fairbanks and Doug Howard, still holds the tournament batting average record—.592 in 1975. Tuckett pointed out, "he should still field a representative team, augmented by a strong defense."
